"THIS FAIGHTFUL FAMINE"

NANSEN URGES LEAGUE TO IMMEDIATE ACTION.

GENEVA, September 9.

In the course of a speech on the Russian famine before the Assembly of the League, Dr. Nansen approved Lord Robert Cecil's plea for more publicity and regretted that the Council's report had not mentioned Russia. He declared that Russia was a problem facing Europe and lengthily described "this frightful famine" in Russia. He strongly urged immediate action to cope with the famine before it was too late and moved a resolution that the question should be referred to a committee. He concluded by urgently appealing to the governments of Europe to help. The speech was warmly cheered.

Dr. Nansen's account of the present conditions in Russia, based on his personal investigations, was very distressing and greatly impressed the Assembly. He contended that the food problem was not difficult, there was plenty of food and transport in the world while the Russians were quite capable of coping with internal transport. He believed that the agreement with the Soviet Government was satisfactory and the Soviet could be trusted, to carry it out. He urged immediate action as the situation was most serious.

INTER-ALLIED COMMISSION'S POSITION.

LONDON, September 9.

The Soviet Government's refusal to allow the inter-Allied Relief Commission to investigate conditions in Russia may result in the dissolution of the commission which is now sitting in Paris, as it is felt that no good purpose can be served by continuing the labours of the commission in view of the Soviet Government's uncompromising attitude and the fact that any relief sent to Russia would apparently be taken over by the Soviet authorities for disposal as they alone thought fit. It is authoritatively stated in London that there are indications that the refusal is based on the deliberate purpose of refusing relief from the Allies.

HOME COTTON TRADE.

SERIOUS DISPUTE AGAIN THREATENED.

TALK OF GENERAL LOCKOUT.

LONDON, September 9.

A serious dispute is again threatened in the Lancashire cotton trade. A committee of the Employers' Federation at Manchester has decided to call a meeting of the whole of the trade with a view to enforcing a general lock-out affecting 100,000 operatives unless the Oldham cardroomers' union withdraw their demand for the payment of wages to operatives out of work owing to machinery being changed, in connection with which the union tendered notices to cease work at the anchor spinning mill.

HOME CRICKET.

AUSTRALIANS' MATCH AT SCARBOROUGH.

LONDON, September 9.

At Scarborough there were 8,000 spectators. The weather was sunny and hot. The wicket was good. The Australians made 231, Bardsley and Andrew 55 and 43 respectively. Jupp took five for 54 and Woolley three for 72. The innings lasted 232 minutes. The English fielding and bowling were good. The Englishmen in two hours' batting made 119 for six. Sandham scored 50.

RUBBER PAVING BLOCK.

NON-SLIPPING AND PRACTICALLY NOISELESS.

LONDON, September 9.

The Malay States Government Agency in London is exhibiting a specimen of rubber paving block manufactured in the Malay States. It is claimed to be non-slipping and practically noiseless. It can be manufactured at about 37s. 6d. a yard.

CHINA BRITAIN'S RIVAL.

AMERICANS RAPIDLY DEVELOPING HER INDUSTRIES.

LONDON, September 9.

In an article in the Pall Mall Gazette, Mr. Ellis Barker urges that in view of the competition on the Continent and in the Far East, British workers cannot afford to demand high wages for totally insufficient output. He points out that India and Japan are becoming increasingly important as manufacturing nations, and declares that China will soon become a formidable rival to Britain, especially as her industries are being rapidly developed by energetic American business men. Compared with the industrial potentialities of China, those of Japan are quite insignificant.

TARIFF WAR.

NORWAY'S REPRISALS AGAINST PORTUGAL.

LONDON, September 9.

The recent Portuguese action in increasing the maximum duties and taxes fivefold on Norwegian ships coming to Portuguese harbours has evoked reprisals. A Christiania message states that the customs department has ordered the application of the maximum tariff rates on commodities despatched from Portugal and Portuguese possessions after September 8.

FRANCE'S HEAVY CIVIL SERVICE LIST.

REDUCTION THAT WILL SAVE 287,000,000 FRANCS.

LONDON, September 9.

The swollen character of the roll of civil service employees in England against which there was recently a big outcry finds its counterpart in France where there were 23 per cent. more state workers on January 1 than before the war. Paris messages state that it is now proposed to cut down the total 22 per cent. in 1922 compared with 1921, leaving 400,000 employees. This will save 287,000,000 francs.

THE PINK TICKET.

"A PROVIDENTIAL GODSEND."

MURDER TRIAL DISCUSSION.

The pink theatre ticket and its relation to the Crown case in the Woking Theatre murder trial was the subject of a rather brisk discussion between counsel in the Supreme Court yesterday afternoon just before the hearing was adjourned.

Fokis from the theatre had been called and had stated that tickets were usually collected at half time but that on August 16, since the murder happened at about half time, no tickets were taken up. The pink tickets, it was explained, were for the "sofa" stalls where all the best people went.

At the close of this evidence Mr. F. C. Jenkin, appearing for the defence, tried to persuade the Attorney General to tell him exactly what was the Crown case in regard to the pink ticket. Mr. Jenkin said he presumed that, subject to the Acting Chief Justice's decision on the point of law as to the admissibility of certain evidence argued out earlier in the day the Crown evidence had now been completed. Much labour, he pointed out had been expended on the pink ticket issue during the trial. All the evidence regarding it was new and had been added since the opening of the Crown case and he had no idea as to how the Attorney General intended shaping his case on the point. He thought the Attorney General should state shortly what he would ask the jury to conclude from that evidence.

The Attorney General pointed out that the ticket issue arose in consequence of the finding of the ticket on the first morning of the trial. It was new evidence to him as well and he would prefer not to address the jury on the point until Monday. In the meantime he would go into the matter and he was prepared to communicate with Mr. Jenkin privately on the point.

Mr. Jenkin: My friend, Your Lordship, has had the whole of this week to settle the point. I should have thought that the Crown would have known what their case was by now but if they don't want to say anything, all right. This case has been so peculiar in many ways.

The Attorney General: I do know what the Crown case is but I would not like to confine myself as to details.

His Lordship agreed with Mr. Jenkin that in the ordinary course had the evidence been available when the trial began the Attorney General must have "opened" on the ticket issue. He thought the Attorney General could outline his case privately to Mr. Jenkin.

Mr. Jenkin said he would wait until Monday morning. "I have never heard of such a thing" he declared.

"When my friend first heard of the ticket" observed the Attorney General "he took it as a providential godsend".

"And I still do" returned Mr. Jenkin.

The hearing was then adjourned until Monday morning when, presumably, the Attorney General will outline the Crown case on the ticket issue and the case for the defence will begin.

EX-KAISER'S FINANCES.

CURIOUS DETAILS.

INTERESTING FIGURES PUBLISHED.

Curious and pre-eminently authentic details of the ex-Kaiser's pecuniary affairs are given in a book entitled

"The Hohenzollerns," by Kurt

Heinrich, who, on behalf of the Prussian Finance Ministry, took a leading part in the negotiations

between the Government and the discarded dynasty. The author states that in the first year of his reign

Wilhelm saved 180,000 marks out of the Privy Purse allowance in the Civil List, and with the exception of 1889 his accumulations grew annually.

In the first years of the war he saved

a million annually, but towards its end his expenses exceeded the State allowance. At the time of his abdication the Privy Purse contained

50,000,000 marks, of which 18,000,000

had been saved out of the Civil List.

About 25,000,000 marks were invested in first-class industrial shares.

Every class of industry, banking,

shipping, coal, iron, chemicals, and electricity, were represented in the investments, and there was no individual holding of more than a half to three-quarters of a million marks. He never held actual shares in the Krupp works, as has so often been stated, but at one time he had a few hundred thousand marks in the debentures of this company. His investment in the war loan was

"neither more nor less than a careful and able administrator would have cared to dispose of in this way."

When the revolution came no one,

either in the Hohenzollern family or among the Court officials, except those directly concerned with the administration of the money, had any idea what the personal fortune

of the ex-Kaiser really was.

On his flight into Holland,

Wilhelm took with him no funds to provide for the future, and found himself pecuniarily embarrassed on the second day of his sojourn at Amsterdam. Till he was paid the first 650,000 marks out of the Privy

Purse in December, 1918, he had to defray his expenses by credits.

When he decided to buy Doorn it was only after many urgent requests, protests, and even menaces that he induced the Prussian Government to remit the necessary money.

At one juncture he threatened

that if he were not permitted to buy the house the only course left open to him would be to return to Germany and sue in the ordinary courts for the liberation of as much of this private fortune as was necessary to enable him to live in a manner consonant with his former position in society. Herr Heinrich gives the total sum remitted to the ex-Kaiser to the end of last year as 69,000,000 odd marks. Of this, 40,000,000

marks were the proceeds of the sale of two estates in the Westphalia

to the German Central Government,

3,250,000 marks were the price of two yachts, and the remainder came from the alodial estate and the family fiefs sent to Doorn.

The author admits that in addition to money, "not inconsiderable quantities" of plate and other valuables

were sent to Doorn. These objects include a thousand silver plates, with knives, forks, and spoons to match,

360 gilded plates, a collection of enormous epergnes, a case of communion plate, and a silver font, "the gift of the Queen of England," while the "special wish of the ex-Kaiser concerned one particular example of a number of weather vanes which had been fitted up in most of the palaces,

and which, when one pressed a button,

indicated the direction of the wind

in illuminated letters within a frame

on the walls of the work rooms."

General von Gonthard, "the Court

Marshal" at Doorn, through whom these demands came, seems to have wished to provide "for the last grey remote future of the family of Hohenzollern," for among the things

he asked for were 200 room thermometers and an equal number of writing sets for the rooms of the suite and the servants.

The book further supplies many interesting details of events in the Berlin Palace during the troublous days of the revolution. The stories of the sack of the building seem to have been mainly erroneous. There was no

wildfire of water over the first days of the relaxation of authority, when the Berlin mob swarmed through the rooms, and the amount done subsequently was very trifling. Though considerable quantities of nick-nacks, clothing, and linen were stolen, the plate-room and linen were over 100,000 bottles of wine and thousands of cognac remained in the vaults, and through all the confusion

and fighting of which the Schloss

was the centre, the Spartacists requisitioned a few horses from the Royal stables to draw their field-guns, but returned them

punctiliously when they had done

with them. After the Schloss had been occupied for a couple of months by troops there remained,

among many other stores in its extensive larder, 50,000lb of flour,

(Reuter's Service to the China Mail.)

REPARATIONS PROBLEM.

LONDON, September 9th.
The difficulty of apportioning the first milliard gold marks reparations paid by Germany, on August 31st, has given rise to Franco-British difficulties.
The question is extraordinarily complicated, owing to the difficulty of estimating the respective values of the payments in kind,
and Belgium received railway material, livestock and coal. Great Britain received ships.

A special financial conference in Paris has reached an agreement, which the French delegate, M. Doumer, has signed under the reservation that the arrangement is subject to the approval of the French Government. M. Doumer has now come to London to undertake informal discussions with Sir Robert Horne
for the purpose of reaching a binding conclusion.

PROHIBITION IN NORWAY.

CHRISTIANIA, September 9th.
The Odelsting has passed by 47 votes to 41, the Prohibition Bill forbidding the importation of spirituous liquors and wines containing over 14 per cent. alcohol.

GERMAN MARK.

LONDON, September 9th.
A Berlin message says that, in consequence of recent wild speculation due to the depreciation of the mark, the Bourse has been closed till Monday. The future hours of opening will be restricted.
The official price of the exchange on London on September 8th was 32 marks to £1, as compared with 34 marks, on September 7th, but subsequently the pound went to 30.
There was simultaneously a great rise in the industrial shares. There was a similar position at the Hamburg, Frankfurt and other exchanges.

BOARD OF TRADE RETURN

LONDON, September 9th.
The trade returns indicate some revival in both imports and exports, as compared with the low point reached during the coal strike. Exports and imports, however, have increased about 25,000,000, as compared with July, while the exports for the month are about £10,000,000, showing a further recovery in merchant trade in foreign and colonial goods.
Over 3,000,000 tons of coal, valued at £2,000,000, were exported in August.
Raw materials, worth £19,000,000, were imported, as compared with £15,250,000
in July; £18,000,000 worth of manufactured goods were imported in each month; but the exports of manufactured goods in August were £4,000,000, as compared with £3,500,000, as compared with July exports.

WASHINGTON CONFERENCE.

LONDON, September 9th.
A Washington telegram says there is some reason to doubt that the Disarmament Conference can be kept on a plane above party politics in the United States. The Democratic National Committee has begun to issue literature, which, in effect, attacks the Conference. The chief point in the criticism is the introduction of the purely diplomatic Asiatic question, which, it is argued, will complicate the question of limitation of armaments, and,
thus, can only operate against speedy
and successful results.

OBITUARY.

LONDON, September 9th.
The death is announced of Sir David Erskine, K.C.V.O., D.L., who was Sergeant-at-Arms to the House of Commons from 1885 to 1918, Gentleman Usher of the Robes from 1901 to 1918, and Groom of the Robes to Queen Victoria from 18 to 1901. Sir David was a Crimean veteran.

FAMINE IN RUSSIA.

LONDON, September 9th.
M. Tchicherin has refused the Inter-Allied Commission's request for permission to send a commission of investigation to the famine districts.
The Note, as given in the Daily Herald,
is couched in bitter terms objecting primarily to the personality of M.
Tchicherin, the signatory to the Inter-Allied Note, as a bitter and treacherous enemy of the Revolution from the beginning, and it concludes that the Soviet Government only regards the proposals as a monstrous gesture of mockery at the expense of men lying of hunger.

LONDON, September 9th.
The Trade Union Congress passed a resolution expressing the deepest sympathy with the Russian people in the unprecedented calamity which has befallen them, calling upon the British organized Labour financially to support the Russian people to their utmost, authorizing the General Council to start a relief fund for the workers of Russia, suggesting an immediate grant of £1,000, empowering the General Council to use the whole power of organized Labour in order to induce the Government to purchase the necessary medical supplies
and money credits so urgently needed
by Russia, and urging the British Government to recognize the Russian Government so as to enable the proposals to be carried out.

LEAGUE OF NATIONS.

GENEVA, September 9th.
The Amendeur Commission of the Council of the League has decided not to propose amendments to Article X. of the Covenant, by which members of the League undertake to preserve against external aggression, the territorial integrity and political independence of members of the League, but to adopt an interpretative resolution declaring that the object of the Article is not to perpetuate the existing territorial and political divisions, for these can legally only be modified under the Covenant, but that the Article does not compel members of the League to furnish armed forces to guarantee territorial integrity which may be menaced.

GRAND TRUNK RAILWAY.

TORONTO, September 9th.
There are indications that the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council will be approached with an appeal against the majority award of the Grand Trunk Railway arbitrators.

ORIENTAL LABOUR IN BRITISH COLUMBIA.

VANCOUVER, September 9th.
At the Supreme Court, Justice
Murphy has granted an injunction restraining the Government of British Columbia from forbidding holders of timber licences to employ Japanese and Chinese labour.
The injunction remains effective until the Supreme Court has decided the question of the constitutionality of the Oriental Validation Act.

SHIPPING.

SHIP LOSS INQUIRY.

ALLEGED PLOT TO SINK HER.

At the Board of Trade inquiry in Glasgow into the loss of the British steamer "Spathart," which foundered off the Portuguese coast on April 29
last, evidence by the second engineer Mitchell was that water gathered in the engine room. When he drew the chief engineer's attention, the latter replied, "Do nothing; I am going to put her under."

Mitchell said he saw the chief engineer open the sea valves and the bilge suction valve.
Albert Browning, steward, said he asked the chief engineer what at the same was. The chief engineer patted him on the shoulder and said,
"It is all right, steward, leave it to me. I am going to do it at 10 o'clock." In a later conversation with the chief engineer, Browning said, "Mr. Malley, will you tell me the time you are going to sink the ship, because I want to get some "ares into the boats and to get my bag packed?"

Later in the small boat, when the chief officer wanted to go back and save the ship, the chief engineer (according to Browning) said, "I will go back and finish her," to which the chief officer replied, "You will do nothing of the kind while I am here."

George Gordon, carpenter, said he thought there was a conspiracy to sink the ship.
The Board of Trade Court of Inquiry found that the loss was caused by Thomas Malley, chief engineer, wilfully scuttling her by opening the sea communications in the engine-room.

The court also found that the master and officers failed to make any adequate effort to find out the cause of the ship making water, or to save her from being sunk, and that they prematurely abandoned the ship.
Malley's certificate was cancelled,
and the master's suspended for three months.

The court formed the impression that the master, owing to his age and state of health, aggravated by trying war-time experiences, was unfit to fill any position of responsibility at sea.

U.S. SHIPPING BOARD.

THREAT TO BRITISH LINES.

An Associated Press despatch from London reported that the United States Shipping Board had delivered an ultimatum to the British shipping lines that "unless fair treatment were accorded to American ships in contracts for the transport of cotton from Alexandria, Egypt, to the United Kingdom and the United States the Shipping Board will 'declare an open market and haul anything anywhere at any rate.' But an Associated Press despatch from Washington which tried to secure confirmation of the London statement says that the Shipping Board, while prepared to adopt aggressive measures
"to ensure fair treatment of American ships," has no information whatever about an ultimatum. It is pointed out that Senator Jones and others have been very active in securing facility for American shipping, and a like disposition on the part of other Powers in friendly rivalry must be expected.

GENERAL NOTES.

Carrying the largest oil cargo yet
shipped from Swansea, the tanker,
"British Duke" left the port with 5,000
tons of oil for warships.

Of the ex-German steamers sold 1,350,000 tons have been bought by British and Allied shippers and 70,000 tons by ex-enemy shippers, said Sir W. Mitchell-Thomson
in the House of Commons.

CHURCH NOTES.

XVTH SUNDAY AFTER TRINITY.

This Sunday's Gospel gives the pathetic story of the raising of the widow's son at Nain, which is the second case recorded of Christ raising the dead. Thus the day bids us remember Christ as the vanquisher of all disease and death, and touches Him as the helper of all who need Him, even though it may mean the staying of what are called natural laws. This miracle stands out with him the relic of the Cross discovered by St. Helena, the mother of the great Christian Emperor, Constantine the Great. Later, this relic was restored with great ceremony to its place of honour in Jerusalem, and the event commemorated ever since on September 14th every year.

Next Wednesday is a minor holy day, called the Exultation of the Holy Cross, it is kept very little in the Anglican Church but it is of interest to note its origin. It is said that when Herod, in A.D. 614, captured Jerusalem, he carried off with him the relic of the Cross discovered by St. Helena, the mother of the great Christian Emperor, Constantine the Great. Later, this relic was restored with great ceremony to its place of honour in Jerusalem, and the event commemorated ever since on September 14th every year.

This week there have been a number of Anglican Mission Workers in the Colony from various parts of the Diocese. They came to take part in a Conference which was held at Bishop's House on Wednesday. In order that others interested in Missions might have an opportunity of hearing of what has been done, Tuesday was set apart as a day for the giving of verbal reports by representatives from the various districts. In the past most of the missionary work in the Diocese has been done by the Church Missionary Society, so that all the speakers were members of that body.

The order of Tuesday's proceedings were for the most part informal, though there were two definite items on the programme: at 10.30 a.m. there was a Celebration of the Holy Eucharist in the Bishop's Chapel, at which His Lordship pontificated, assisted by Archdeacon Barnett, and from 2.30 p.m. to 4.00 p.m. the whole party met to hear the reports.

The Church of England Men's Society has taken a new lease of life after a most drastic purging administered by itself for its own good. One has heard recently in Hongkong of members being required to make special renewals of membership or else drop out of the ranks; this procedure has been taking place all over the world because it was found that so many men who were members had become slack with regard to the observance of the Rule of Life, the principal point of which is that members must do some active Church work.

The result of the renewals is a distinct decrease in membership but an increase in liveliness owing to the enthusiasm of those who have made promises anew.

Figures of previous membership are not to hand, but the new number for England and Wales is 45,000; it is expected that this number will be brought up to 50,000 when the returns are received from abroad.

Those interested in the excavation of ruins of old churches will be delighted to know that great success has attended the efforts of Mr. Peers, the chief inspector of ancient monuments, who has been supervising the operations at Rievaulx Abbey in Yorkshire.

The grass grown mounds have been cleared away, and the whole nave has been completely revealed with its walls and piers, altars, tiled floors, floor-piscinas screens and even the wall paintings. In two cases the relics in leaden caskets were found beneath the broken altar slabs. The nave is a fine example of the most severe XIIth century Cistercian work of the Burgundian type, while the aisles appear to have had barrel vaults, as at Fountains Abbey. Excavations are still proceeding, and all discoveries are being preserved against further decay.

It seems curious that such a famous church as Westminster Abbey should know so little about its glass, but it is a fact that until quite recently there was practically no record of the history of those beautiful stained glass windows which most of us have admired so often. Says in an absurd account, written a century ago, no one seems to have given it much attention.

War-time conditions are indirectly responsible for what may almost be called the re-discovery of the glass. The apse windows were removed for safety during the air-raids over London, and this gave an opportunity for a thorough examination of the precious colourings.

Mrs. Eeles, who has recently been lecturing on the subject before the Royal Archaeological Institute, has made a special study of what has been revealed, and has made some interesting discoveries which are at present recorded in photos and notes, but may later be published in book form.

While speaking of Church glass it is noteworthy that it is proposed to fill the windows in Bristol Cathedral with stained-glass in memory of those who have fallen in the war, anyone who has lost a relative being permitted to fill one panel. One of the weeklies at home heard that one of the panels would represent Henry VIII, and waxed very indignant about the matter as will be seen by the following extract:—"We cannot think that there are any who would wish to commemorate a lost relative by the gift of a portrait of a murderer and adulterer to be ranged among the Saints of the Church."

Australian Churchmen will be glad to hear that Canon Wise of Adelaide will not be tried for disloyalty to his ordination vows and the Prayer Book, as Bishop Thomas has unreservedly withdrawn his charges. It would seem that the whole affair has been due to a series of misunderstandings, and churchmen should be thankful that the mistakes have been realised in time.

It is quite the fashion, and a very good fashion too, that many of our large dioceses should be split up into small ones in order that a bishop may do his work of overseeing more thoroughly. Our own bishop has lately declared that he looks forward to the time when part of his diocese, the large province of Yunnan, shall become a separate diocese with its own bishop. The news of the latest division of a diocese from South Africa, where Bishop Talbot has decided to split up the diocese of Pretoria. Wise is the man who is willing to give up part of his power of jurisdiction for the good of the church.

Since Mr. Inge became Dean of St. Paul's he has made quite a name for himself by startling statements, which, from time to time, he hurls at the public. Lately he has been writing an article on Teetotal Fanaticism, contributed to the Evening Standard, which glances also at the American anti-tobacco sects which take as their motto: "Worship the Lord with clean lips," a curiosity of exegesis which ranks with the explanation of St. Paul's prescription to Timothy as a recommendation of grape-juice, or alternately of wine for external application only. The Dean enlarges upon the tendency of Puritanism to set up taboos, which are not Christian, and superfluous, since drunkenness is no longer a national vice, and our greatest moral dangers do not come from alcohol. He says that Prohibition might be defended as an exceptional remedy for a desperate disease, but it is indefensible when the disease is becoming rare. He further adds that when the conscience of a nation does not regard moderate drinking as immoral it is impossible to enforce Prohibition; the law is evaded wholesale in America, with disastrous and quite unforeseen results.

HOME TRADE.

MANCHESTER MARKET REPORT.

Messrs. Morreau and Spiegelberg reported as follows on July 27—

Cotton.—Prices of the raw material have given way somewhat during the week.

Liverpool spot prices yesterday were—
American F. M. 838d. last week 877d.
Egyptian Sakellaris 16d. last week 1650d.

Yarns.—Rates remain steady at last week's figures.

Cloth.—It has been on the whole a somewhat disappointing week due largely to the Holiday Season.

No great volume of business has come to book. The tone remains healthy—here and there business has to be referred back for longer delivery time.

China has made purchases of small quantities of Whites and Greys. India is somewhat quieter.

The reduction of the Bank Rate points to an easier financial position, although many firms both here and abroad, are held up by large stocks, not only of manufactured goods, but also of native produce. The liquidation of stocks and commitments is a slow process.

Cloth prices remain very steady with a tendency to harden.

On August 3, Messrs. Morreau and Spiegelberg reported as follows—

Cotton.—There has been a little spurt in prices of American yesterday owing to a bullish crop report, but sales by profit takers reduced New York quotations.

Liverpool spot prices yesterday were—
American F. M. 867d. last week 838d.
Egyptian Sakellaris F.G.F. 16,000d. last week 16,000d.

Yarns.—A fair business has been done at last week's quotations.

Cloth.—Holidays are in full swing, but a steady little business continues. Many mills have gone on full time.

The adverse crop report did not cause any sensation in Manchester. This market is in no mood for a boom; it has too many difficulties of its own to face. There are still stocks to clear, and goods not taken up by overseas buyers. Shippers have difficulties to settle with defaulting customers in India, China and other markets.

A steady, but very slow revival, is taking place, and although the trade machine is not running smoothly, the wheels are turning round slowly with much creaking and groaning.

India still buys small lots. Bombay, Madras, and Calcutta all having made purchases during the week.

China has bought fair quantities of Greys, whites and fancies. Egypt, the smaller Eastern markets, and South America, have also bought. The home trade is quiet.

Freight rates to the East have been reduced, and there is strong agitation for further reductions in printing and dyeing prices.

The market is still very sensitive to the political situation in Europe.

THE MAGIC MUSICAL TREE.

"I do wish, Carrie, that you were fond of music," said her mother, with a sigh.

Carrie had just finished her music-lesson and it was always a trial to them both. She really tried very hard. She counted very carefully.

"One, two, three, four," and if she made a mistake she started all over again. But the result was she played very slowly and not as if she enjoyed it, and indeed she was always glad when her lesson had come to an end.

Now both Carrie's father and mother loved music and were anxious that their little daughter should be fond of it too but it did not seem as though she would ever really like it.

"You can run and play in the garden now," her mother said and Carrie was quite ready to get down. She took her favourite doll, Lucinda, for a walk to the far end of the garden where there was a high hedge and on the other side were fields.

There she sat down and was putting Lucinda's hat straight when she heard a sound on the other side of the hedge. It was like someone playing on the violin and at the same time it was like a black bird whistling.

"What can it be?" wondered Carrie and she put Lucinda down on a mossy bank and peeped through a gap in the hedge.

And there, sitting under an old oak tree, was a little man dressed in bright green, playing on the queerest violin. It was made of bark, the strings were the veins of leaves and he was playing on it with a bow made of a quaking grass. Whenever the little bits of quaking grass touched the instrument it gave out the sweetest sounds.

"How I wish I could play like that," said Carrie out loud. "My mother would be so pleased." The little man looked round, took off his hat and bowed very easily.

"It is perfectly easy," he said. "Then will you teach me," cried Carrie. "Oh I should be so very pleased if you would."

"The trouble is," said the little man, looking at her seriously, "that you have no music in your head. If you will first of all allow me to change that, you will find that there will not be any more bother."

"Very well," agreed Carrie. "I don't mind what you do."

"Then come through the hedge to me," said the little man and Carrie crept through a hole obediently. "Sit down under my magic tree," he went on, "while I call up my servants."

"Why I thought it was only an ordinary oak tree," Carrie said, in a surprised voice.

"On no," her new friend told her, "it is the tree which the birds of the forest love best and here they give their concerts at night, so it is known far and wide as 'The Magic Musical Tree.' Now," he added, "We must get on with the work."

He drew his quaking grass bow seven times across his violin and at the seventh chord there was a whirling sound in the air and birds of all size and shape came flying along on the boughs of the tree.

Then they all began to sing and it was the most wonderful music that anyone could imagine, Carrie listened and the little man sat near by playing a small basket of grasses. All of a sudden he cried, "Stop, the magic basket is ready. Pass it round and each one is to put his sweetest note in it."

A big thrush, which was on the lowest branch, took the basket in his mouth, sang a delicious note with the basket held close up to his beak and then it was passed from one bird to another.

When the little man took it again Carrie saw that it was half full of what looked like shining dewdrops. The little man poured some water into the basket from a stream near by. Then he told Carrie to bend down, and rubbed the mixture on to her hair. She felt it soaking right through and at once the most beautiful music came into her mind, and picking up the tiny instrument which lay near by, she found that she could play it easily.

All the birds joined in and were singing loudly. . . . when . . . there was a sudden silence.

Carrie, looking up, saw her mother at the garden gate and found that the little man and the birds had disappeared.

"What are you singing to yourself over there Carrie?" asked her mother.

"Singing, I didn't know that I was singing," she replied.

"You must be bewitched child," cried her mother. "Come in with me now."

So Carrie picked up Lucinda and went with her mother.

No sooner was she indoors than she rushed to the piano and began to play as easily and naturally as possible.

"What has happened to you," cried her mother, for you can imagine how surprised she was.

Carrie told her all about the little man and the birds. Her mother seemed to think that it must have been a dream, but anyhow after that, Carrie loved music with all her heart, and whenever she played people thought of the songs of birds, and green fields, and cool streams, and all the most beautiful things possible.

What is the quickest way to stop the toothache?
Jump through a window and the pane's (pain's) all gone.

BLOWING BUBBLES.

My mother blows soap bubbles With a pipe that's made of clay. But only for a treat when there's a storm or a wet day.

She blows them through the window And they sail away so far. Though sometimes they go pop! and Then we all call out "Burrah!"

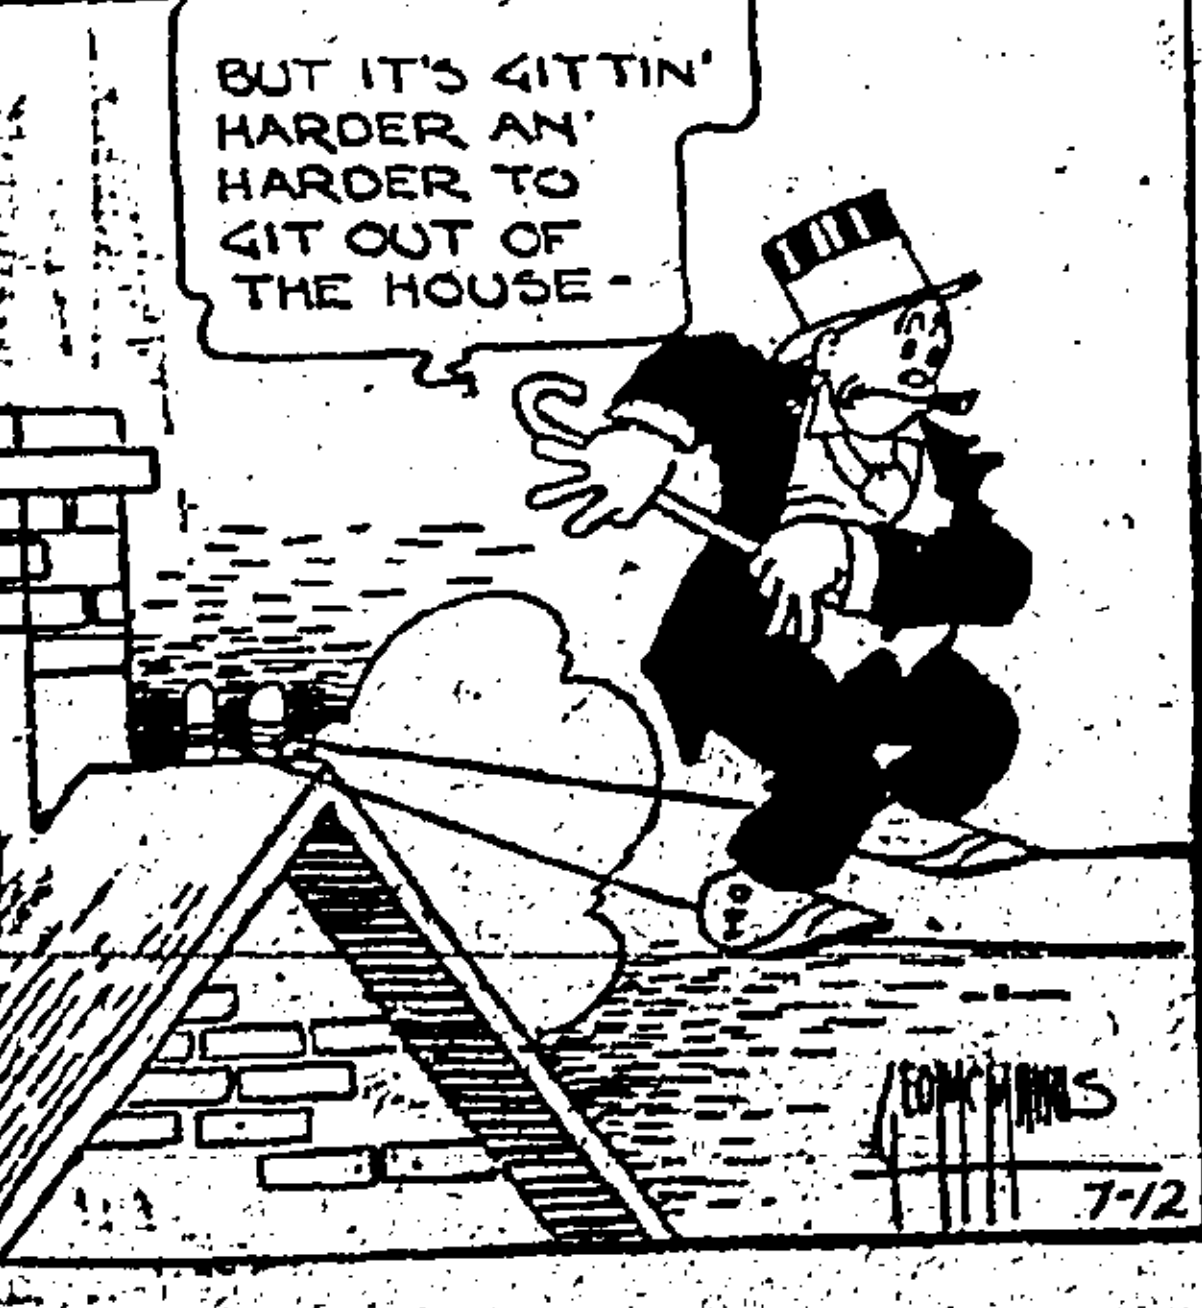

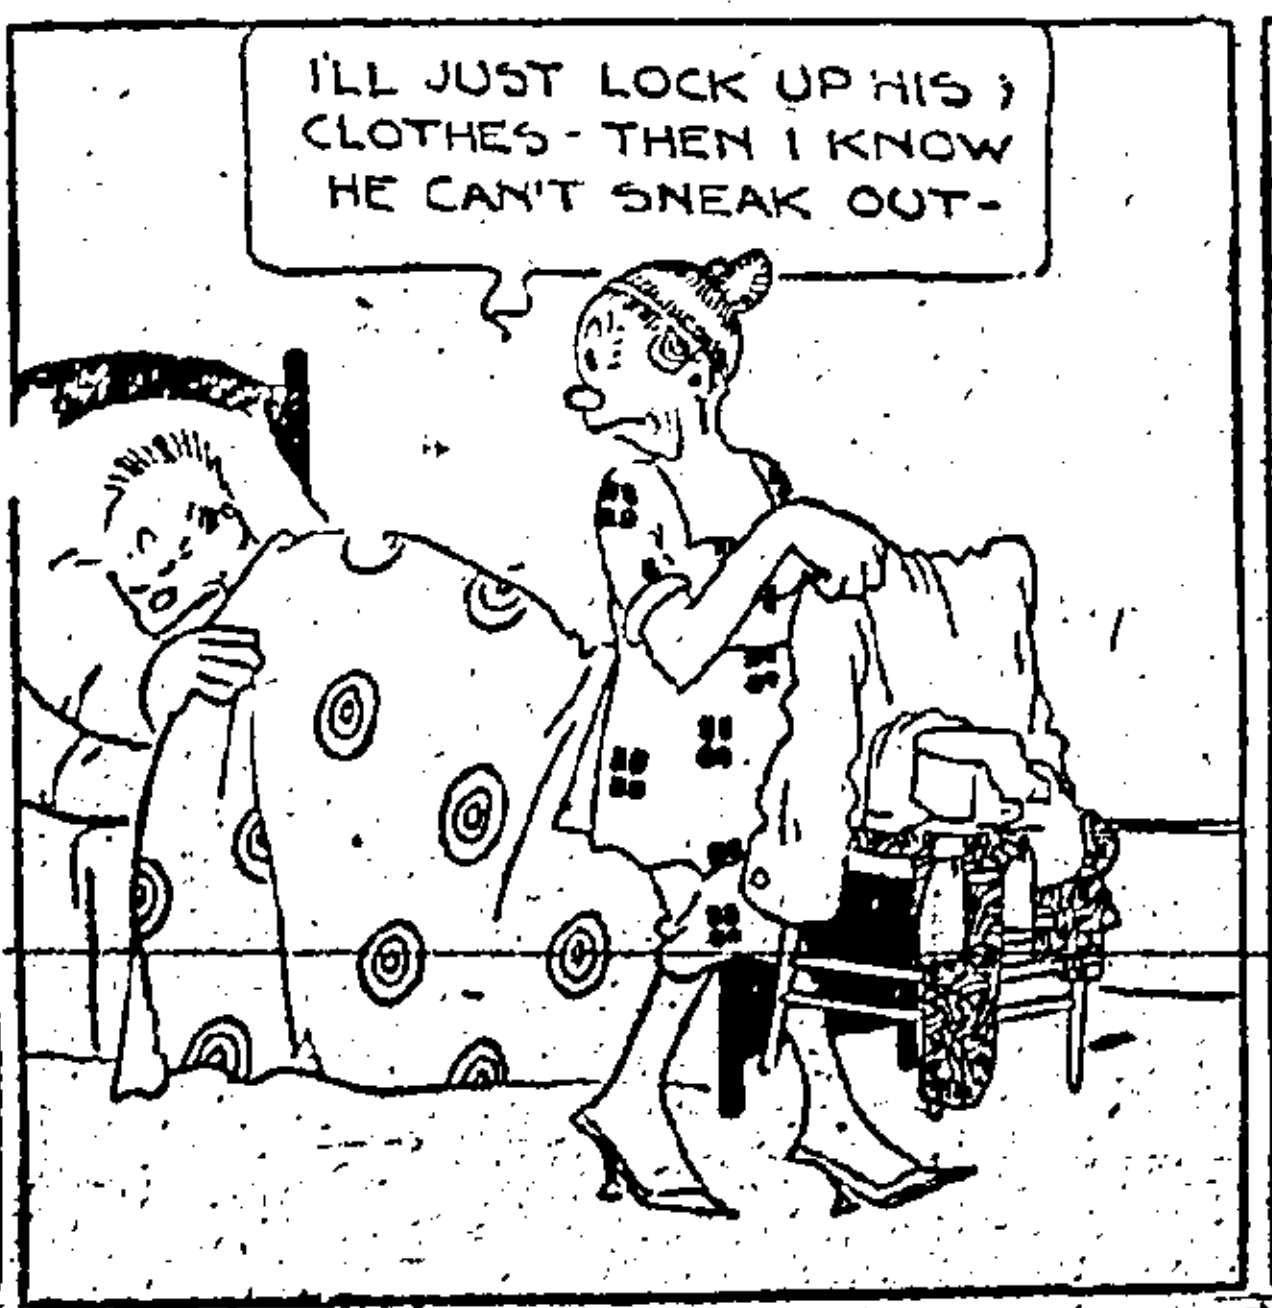

They are such lovely colours And they shine and sparkle too. In fairyland I think there Must be lots of them, don't you?
